It all started with our dad and his passion

Before we were a company, our dad and founder, Dale was a Rocket Scientist meets Free Thinker. His Aerospace degree came from the University of Toronto, but his love for invention started with repairing cars in his dad's garage.

After leaving his job engineering military equipment, Dale pursued his passion for positive craftsmanship by creating small juice presses from his cabin in the woods.

When several local farmers asked Dale to make juice presses for their orchard, he agreed — provided he received 100 letters in response to an advertisement he placed in the local newspaper. When it was over, we had received 99 letters total, missing the goal by one letter. Dale figured one must have gotten lost in the mail. Goodnature was born.

Many of Dale's inventions have become industry standard, thanks to his commitment to listening to customers' needs and passion for constantly improving everything we make and everything we do.
